Most security professionals in financial services will agree that the biggest security challenge organizations face today is people. Whether it is third parties, highly privileged users, or business users, insiders present a massive risk to your organization because they have been given access to critical applications, systems, and data to do their jobs.

70% of insider threats go unnoticed, take several months to uncover*, and are extremely costly. Addressing the threat from the inside is much different than addressing external threats and requires security teams take a different approach. ObserveIT delivers an innovative way to help identify and eliminate insider threat through the use of User Activity Monitoring and Analytics. Having the ability to observe and understand what users are doing is a core capability to drastically reducing the risk of insider threat and adhering to existing and emerging compliance regulations.

Remove any uncertainty with detailed audit logs of highly privileged users and remote vendors handling sensitive data and accessing critical systems.
